©CIL 20279 HER MEMORY

A young girl and her sweetheart engaged, are paying a visit to a Country Club. The girl, inclined to frivolousness and gaiety indulges in many cocktails and smokes many cigarettes and when chided by her fiance resents his intervention, she declares the engagement off. The young man seeking quietness in another portion of the country club hotel meets a very beautiful young girl seated in a wheel chair. His heart, on the rebound, makes him see in her glances more than friendliness and she observing this does not desist and he declares his love for her. To his dismay a little later the girl acknowledges and discloses that she has a withered limb and the spell is broken but the girl gained a MEMORY.
